"Lauren Artress, an Episcopal priest and psychotherapist largely considered responsible for sparking the labyrinth movement. . ."

~ O Magazine

"We live in such a left brain world... and here's this whole other world that we must integrate in order to meet the challenges of the next century," Artress has said. When people walk into a labyrinth, they "shift consciousness from the linear to the non-linear" and bring to the surface "the deep, intuitive, pattern part of ourselves."

~ Daniel H. Pink

The New York Times

"The modern-day bloom of labyrinths in this country can be traced to a restless Episcopal priest in California, the Reverend Lauren Artress, a psychotherapist with a divinity degree, who had already been pushing the envelope of traditional practice as a canon at Grace Cathedral in San Francisco."

The Labyrinth Experience

What is a labyrinth?

The labyrinth is a sacred pattern, an ancient mystical tool that can help us quiet the mind and create a space for self-reflection and prayer. Labyrinths are usually in the form of a circle with a meandering but purposeful path, from the edge to the center, large enough to be walked. The labyrinth is an archetype, a divine imprint, found in most religious traditions in various forms around the world. While there are many forms of the labyrinth, the Chartres style is Lauren's heartsong. By walking a replica of the Chartres style labyrinth, laid in the floor of Chartres Cathedral around 1201, and replicated at Grace Cathedral, a long-forgotten mystical tradition is insisting to be reborn. It is a spiritual practice meant to awaken us to the deep rhythms that unite us to ourselves, our communities and to the Wisdom that beckons.

"Labyrinths prompt thoughtful mini-journeys, stimulating the mind as one moves step by step through their swirling designs."
~ Creative Living

Lauren Artress through Veriditas, the organization she founded, is the leading force in the use of the labyrinth as a spiritual practice. "We have a vast spiritual hunger in the West and labyrinths offer a symbol that nourishes the soul"

"I found your labyrinth ...one of the greatest gifts of my life."
~ Marcus

Labyrinths have many uses and can be found in churches, cathedrals, gardens, hospitals, schools, community centers, prisons and spas. The rediscovery of the labyrinth as a powerful tool with a variety of applications has sprung from the work of Lauren Artress.

"The extent to which labyrinths are considered effective is directly connected with the experience they engender; the emotions and insights they ignite, the sense of calm or presence they evoke, the depth of solace they bring and the activation of our interior symbolic realms that they stir."

The Wisdom of the Labyrinth: It's History, Mystery and Modern Uses

Lauren Artress presents the fascinating history of the labyrinth and the story of how she came to work with the labyrinth. The labyrinth, a spiral pathway, can be symbolic of our path in life. It is a way to nourish our inner world. It is not a maze, designed to confuse us, but a flowing path inviting a mystical experience.

Addressing The Spiritual Hunger Of Our Times

We hunger to live a symbolic life. We need symbols that hold meaning for us in the present day. A deterrent is that we live in a symbol-phobic culture. Spiritual hunger that goes awry can turn into addictions. Many spiritual practices no longer hold meaning. The labyrinth is an important tool, because embedded in the pattern are three symbols: the circle, an archetype of unity and wholeness, the complex spiral, an archetype of integration and the double helix, the invisible flower of life. Walking the labyrinth can become a sustaining practice that feeds our spiritual hunger.

The Labyrinth as an Organizing Principle

Walking the Labyrinth as a Spiritual Practice gains momentum over time. Frequently the unique pattern—the single path, the turns and the center—holds a spiritual pattern that helps us understand the experiences that “meet” us on the path.

Workshops Offered by Lauren Artress

Stoking the Fires of Creativity

Walking the labyrinth is a meditative practice that is being embraced in many countries around the world. This practice can have many applications. In hospitals it offers a quiet place for prayer, in spas it is used to integrate the mind, body and spirit. In prisons it provides solace and self-reflection. In churches and cathedral it quiets the mind and opens the heart. Though there are many labyrinth styles, the Chartres-style labyrinth is known for its whole-brain integration that opens the channels to creativity and innovation. In this workshop, “Stoking the Fires of Creativity”, Lauren Artress will introduce the use of the labyrinth as a practice that encourages an encounter with our creative process.

Labyrinth Walking: An Ancient Tool for a Whole New Mind

We live much of our lives in a left-brain oriented world that values knowledge as power. But there's another way to experience the world—from the reflective, emotionally embodied, intuitive, synchronistic, nonlinear, and integrative right brain. As we learn the ancient practice of walking the labyrinth with Rev. Lauren Artress, we shift consciousness from our left brain to our right brain, and bring to the surface the deeply intuitive part of ourselves that offers wisdom rather than simply knowledge.

Through labyrinth walks, group discussions, individual reflection, and journaling, we deepen into the ancient practice of the labyrinth and bring balance between our left and right brain. As we create a whole new mind, we ask and answer the questions, “What do I seek? What in my life is calling me?” We also gain a greater awareness of how to quiet our mind, a deeper understanding of what might be blocking our potential, and insight to make the changes necessary to live our life more fully.

Reflections on the Path: Journal Writing and the Labyrinth

Writing our thoughts and experiences is healing and empowering. When writing is coupled with walking the labyrinth, insights and self-knowledge become easily accessible. Whether we seek the center, a stronger sense that we are “on the Path”, or are on a turn in life, the metaphors and symbols that emerge are nourishing to the soul.

This workshop will utilize journaling, prompted by questions that will encourage each participants to draw on his or her inner wisdom.
